

Masyitah Majid, a dedicated homeschooling mother of two based in Kuala Lumpur, Malaysia, discovered her eldest child's giftedness while living abroad, sparking her passion for gifted education. Upon realizing her second child's dyslexia and other learning disabilities, she chose to focus on academic education tailored to his needs, particularly in mathematics and English.

Masyitah's expertise in special needs education led her to modify and create personalized curricula for her child, offering valuable insights to other curriculum providers based on her experiences. Her continuous pursuit of knowledge has taken her around the world, including the United States, the Netherlands, and Jerusalem, enriching her understanding of special education methodologies.

Alongside homeschooling and ongoing studies, she consults parents on gifted and special needs education, sharing her expertise and providing guidance to families seeking support in these areas. Puan Masyitah's unwavering dedication to her children's education and her contributions to the field make her a respected advocate for specialized learning approaches in Malaysia.

MASYITAH MAJID

Passionate Educator | Special Needs Advocate | Global Learner

Background:

Homeschooled mother of two.

Resides in Kuala Lumpur, Malaysia.

Discovered eldest child's giftedness while living abroad, sparking her passion for gifted education.

Discovered her second child's dyslexia and comorbid disabilities, leading her to focus on academic education for learning disabled children, particularly in mathematics and English.

Educational Journey:

Passionate about special needs education, Masyitah has modified and created her child's curriculum to cater to specific needs.

Has provided advice to other curriculum providers based on her findings.

Constantly engaged in learning and has pursued education globally, from the United States to the Netherlands and Jerusalem.

Current Endeavors:

Actively involved in home educating her children.

Continues her own educational journey through studies.

Consults parents on gifted and special needs education.

Masyitah Majid's dedication to understanding and meeting the unique educational needs of her children and others has made her a valuable resource in the field of special education.